ALL FORCES UNITE TO SECURE A NEW HOTEL FOR MT. STERLING

Most Important Meeting of the Campaign Scheduled for Friday, March 17, in Prewitt & Botts Hall

A powerful sales organization with strong support from the women of several of Mt. Sterling's clubs and societies has been practically completed to insure success of the campaign to provide for Mt. Sterling's greatest need, a new hotel. The executive committee of 18 men whose names have been published in connection with this enterprise for Mt. Sterling and community is meeting daily. This group of influential citizens is prepared to put the full strength of their influence and much of their time back of this project for the next two weeks. The larger committee of citizens that is now practically complete, which has been organized under the direction of the following men: John A. Judy, chairman; R. G. Kern, chairman division A; O. W. McCormick, chairman division B; Lee Orear, chairman division C; Dr. T. B. Hill, captain team 1; C. K. Oldham, captain team 2; B. Frank Perry, captain team 3; Robert Collier, captain team 4; R. T. Judy, captain team 5; Hunt Priest, captain team 6; M. O. Cockrell and Joe Keller, associate captains team 7; A. B. Oldham, captain team 8; C. C. Chenault, Jr., captain team 9, is now ready to receive instructions for their part in the program. Probably the most important meeting of the entire campaign is scheduled to be held Friday evening, March 17, in the Prewitt & Botts hall. It is of the utmost importance that every man who will be connected with the campaign sales force in any capacity should attend this meeting. Full instructions and information regarding the methods that will be employed in selling the stock and plans regarding the new hotel, so far as they have been developed, will be given at this meeting. The sales demonstration that will be given will also be an important feature of the meeting. Probably one of the most important divisions allied with the campaign organization was perfected Wednesday afternoon at a meeting held in the Ladies' Rest Room, when the following organizations met and agreed to co-operate in the campaign: The Country Woman's Club, the Tuesday Club, the W. C. T. U., the Missionary Society of the Christian church, the Missionary Societies of the Presbyterian church.

The women representing the organizations mentioned above made all plans to serve the opening supper and the daily luncheons that will be carried to the team workers during the week of the campaign, beginning Tuesday evening, March 21, at 6:30 o'clock sharp. These luncheons and the opening supper will afford the occasion for the team workers and the executive committee to meet daily, and report on the progress of the campaign. They will be served without expense to the men who are doing the work and who will sell the stock that will make it possible for Mt. Sterling's greatest need, a new hotel, to be realized.

W. K. Childers and wife, of Columbus, Ohio, who have been here visiting Mr. Childers' father, Richard Childers, and other relatives, returned to their adopted home today. Mr. Childers said, "I note your progress; you are going some. The old city had outgrown my recollection. That hotel project is great. Senator W. G. Dyeus, lately termed a holding Democrat, returned during the closing hours of the legislature and blocked Governor Morrow's game at veto. The registration bill is passed. This is strictly a party measure and is an aim to prevent illegal voting. It is an honest, fair measure regardless of where the chips may fall. This measure, that of the leaving off of party emblems on the Louisville hall, is helpful to honest elections. INSURANCE FOR NATION— STABILIZATION FARM PRICES

(By Cyrus H. McCormick)
Chairman International Harvester Company.

The agricultural problem today is deeper than is indicated by current discussions in the press and elsewhere, which treat it purely as a present emergency.

In my judgment, the root of the trouble is in the fact that America's farmers have not received adequate compensation for their effort, as compared with the compensation in other vocations.

The accumulated wealth of our agricultural classes largely represents enhanced values rather than the earnings from their labor or the profits from their investment. The farmer should have a fair return for his services as compared with the earnings of any other class, and if we exclude the item of enhanced land value he has not received this return even in better times.

Perhaps the most serious aspect of the agricultural situation is that the farmers' fixed expenses, which the manufacturer would call overhead or burden, are not much higher than they have been before. The single item of farm taxes in many localities is higher today than the rental on the same farm would have been a comparatively short time ago.

The only resource of the American farmer in the current period of distress is one that he and many others have employed before—that is, heavy curtailment of buying. Farmers' purchases were far below normal in 1921, and they remain at low levels. Meanwhile the prices of practically everything the farmers buy have been constantly working lower until now we find that the single item of increased cost of transportation almost, if not wholly, represents the reduction of the purchasing power of a given unit of farm produce today, as compared with the pre-war period. This increased transportation cost decreases the price of what the farmer has to sell and also increases the cost of what he must buy.

While the farmer has endeavored to meet the present situation by temporarily buying less, he cannot in that way escape the burden of fixed charges, based on enhanced land values, which must be met regardless of the price he obtains for his products.

One solution of the problem is a better system for marketing farm products. If foodstuffs can be carried over when there is a surplus, that not only will stabilize agriculture, but will provide insurance against a possible food shortage in the following year.

Even though crops are now selling below cost of production, it is not visionary to consider the possibility of a food shortage.

America has repeatedly been an importer of wheat in the past. The indications today are that while the 1921 crop was sold below a fair price, the surplus going abroad at less than the cost of production, it is possible and even probable that we shall be importing wheat in 1922. Aside from the question of food supply, these facts constitute a powerful argument for a better system of crop marketing.

Under such a system the farmer could avoid the necessity of selling under pressure at too low a price, and the world's greatest grain growing nation would be spared the economic absurdity of importing wheat to meet its domestic requirements.

Nations and municipalities provide sinking funds against future contingencies. Any well managed business builds up reserves in prosperous times against such a period of strain as the present. Why, then, should not we make an effort to provide a reserve as insurance against shortage of the essentials of life, when such provision would in great measure stabilize the value of the farmer's crop and also would protect the whole people against the distress that inevitably would follow any serious shortage in the world's food production?

Immediate relief for our agricultural classes might be found in better financing—in the making available of sufficient funds at reasonable rates, and thus enabling the farmers to "carry on" until the conditions improve. There are ample funds in the country seeking investment and there could be no safer basis of investment than the credits of the American farmer.

Immediate financial relief should not be considered solely as "first aid" treatment. If funds were more readily available in emergencies at more equitable rates of interest the necessity for forced marketing of crops would disappear and the mar-

CORN ROOT ROT MENACE

(By P. G. Holden, Field Director of Agricultural Extension Department, International Harvester Company)

Much discussion and considerable anxiety have been occasioned in all parts of the country where corn is an important crop by the recent appearance of corn diseases which attack the roots, the stalk, the leaf, the ear, the husk and the tassel. The most prominent of these diseases is the corn root rot which, unless checked, threatens to spread over the entire corn belt and cause a tremendous loss.

While the spread of these diseases is just cause for alarm, we fortunately know enough about them to be able to fight them successfully and if every corn grower will take the simple precautions necessary, these diseases may be checked and, in time, nearly, if not entirely, wiped out.

Investigations seem to have established the following two facts regarding these diseases:

1. The diseases live in the soil.
2. The diseases may be carried over in the seed.

Knowing these facts the remedies suggest themselves. They are as follows:

1. Rotate crops. Do not plant corn in the same field it was grown the previous year.
2. Test every ear of seed corn this spring. Every kernel that develops mold and every sprout or root that shows any discoloration is a warning. Do not plant those ears.

Soil that grows corn year after year or every other year will accumulate and carry corn diseases to a greater extent that will land that is in corn only once in every three or four years.

More rotation in which more grasses and clovers are used will do much to reduce the danger from corn diseases carried over in the soil. If we continually grow the same crop on the same land year after year we may expect to have trouble.

Test your seed corn. Last year was a good corn year. In nearly all parts of the corn belt the corn matured thoroughly and as a result many farmers are inclined to think it will not be necessary to test their seed corn this year. Failure to test seed corn may be a fatal mistake. Seed corn should always be tested, particularly just now when we are menaced by these corn diseases.

Take great care in selecting ears for testing. Discard every ear that has a brown or discolored shank. Throw out every ear that broke off in shreds. Discard every ear that shows mold. Throw out every ear that has a bleached tip or has rotten kernels on the tip. Select only ears with kernels that are bright and oily.

Corn may be tested in either a rag doll or a germination box, but the best method is to use the combination improved rag doll and germination box tester recommended by the Indiana Experiment Station. Extension Bulletin No. 97 issued by the Agricultural Extension Department of Purdue University, describes this method as follows:

"The improved rag doll gives an accurate test for germination and also indicates in a large measure those ears which are infested with molds and those infected by the organisms causing the root rot.

"The advantage of this improved method lies in the use of a sheet of heavy glazed paper, which is wrapped up with the cloth and which acts as insulator and prevents the spread of the molds through the cloth. This limits their growth to the seedlings from the kernels which are infected, and diseased ears can thereby be detected.

"The cloth which is used to prepare the dolls may be either bleached or unbleached heavy muslin. The muslin should be purchased in 54-inch widths and the width of the doll be taken as the length of the doll. The muslin is shrunk and then torn into 12-inch strips. This makes a doll approximately 12 by 54 inches in size.

"It will require approximately 12 yards of muslin to supply cloths to prepare 32 dolls, the content of one small germination box. The muslin should be shrunk in large pieces and the starch filler should be removed by prolonged boiling and thorough rinsing of the cloths before using them.

"The doll cloths must be thoroughly sterilized by boiling water before each test. An ordinary wash boiler serves well to sterilize them. In case cleansing them with soap becomes necessary, they should be thoroughly rinsed before using. They are then ready for making the test.

"The first step in preparing the dolls is to lay out on a clean surface of newspapers the strip of the insulating paper. The best paper has been found to be a 70-pound pear water-finish fibre paper. It is a standard grade of paper and can be purchased in 2-inch rolls through any book store or printer. A clean strip must be used for the test. The paper should be at least from eight to ten inches longer than the cloths. The cloth is then placed on the fibre paper preparatory to placing the kernels. Care must be taken not to roll the dolls too tightly or too loosely.

"After the dolls are made they are placed in a double-walled box. The germination box consists of an outer and inner box with sawdust and limestone between them, and cross rods to separate the dolls during the test.

"The inner box is 2 by 24 inches and 18 inches deep, inside dimensions. The outer box can be of any size, but should allow at least a 3-inch space for the sawdust between it and the inner box.

"The walls of the inner box should be perforated to permit damp air from the sawdust to gain access to the inside of it. The cross rods should be fitted inside the smaller box at 3-inch intervals and about 3 inches from the top.

"A box of this size provides room for 32 dolls which gives it a capacity for testing 640 seed ears. A 3-inch layer of sawdust or shavings mixed with approximately one-fourth of its weight of agricultural limestone or air slaked lime should be placed in the bottom of the inner box under the dolls during the test. Do not use caustic lime for this purpose.

"The bottom of the outer box should be perforated to allow excess water to drain through it. The germination box should be placed on strips of wood to facilitate rapid drainage. At no time should the sawdust be permitted to become sour. Adequate limestone will prevent any sourness from developing.

"The dolls are placed in the box in a vertical position. They are sprinkled twice daily with lukewarm water. It is not necessary to immerse the dolls in water at any time during the test. The bags covering the box also are kept moist as well as the sawdust around the inner box.

"A temperature of approximately 80 degrees Fahrenheit should be maintained in the inner box during the test. The box should, therefore, be kept in a warm place. Satisfactory results have been obtained by thoroughly saturating the sawdust around the inner box with boiling hot water twice daily. If this is done, extra precautions are necessary to prevent wetting any of the dolls with the hot water because this would kill the young seedlings and prevent the proper interpretation of the results."

The kernels should be left in the germination test for 10 days or until the sprouts have a chance to grow four or five inches long. This is important just now because should a kernel be diseased, the diseases may not manifest themselves if the kernel is left in the germination box only a week.

On opening the rag dolls examine the sprouts and roots of the germinated kernels carefully. If any of the kernels show mold or any of the sprouts or roots are discolored in any way, the safest plan is to discard the ears. It does not pay to take chances. It is better to throw out a healthy ear than to plant a diseased one.

If every corn grower will rotate his crops, test his seed corn and throw out every suspicious ear, corn root rot and these other corn diseases will soon be checked and thousands of dollars saved.

CINCINNATI RETAIL MERCHANTS OPENING THIS WEEK

Creations from Paris, dresses made in America, that more than favorably compare with the trousseau we have been reading about for Princess Mary, will be shown in Cincinnati this coming week.

In fact the merchants have outdone themselves to bid for the favours of our women folks for their spring bonnets, coats, dresses, etc., and the fashions are so alluring and the prices so attractive that the Mayor himself had issued a proclamation setting aside the two days of March 14th and 15th, as official Spring Opening days; days on which the well known hospitality of the Queen City will be expressed by thoughts, words and deeds. They have gone so far as to provide free parking space for those who come in automobiles.

The mayor's proclamation is as follows:

"Most heartily do I approve of the Cincinnati Retail Merchants' Association to call the attention of our people and of our friends and neighbors in adjoining states to certain dates of the coming week for a general Spring Opening of Cincinnati's retail business.

I, therefore, proclaim that Tuesday and Wednesday, March 14th and 15th, 1922, be observed by all our citizens as "Cincinnati's Spring Opening Days."

That our business concerns make preparations for entertaining their friends and customers with displays of goods in their most attractive forms, and that our citizens generally let the people of the Middle West understand that the Queen City is ready to put her retail stores on record on the dates above mentioned.

The gates of the city will be open wide, both to those who would do business with us and to those who would have us do business with them.

GEORGE P. CARREL, Mayor.

Camargo and Vicinity

Rev. John Ware, one of our highly respected citizens, has been quite sick for some weeks. An early recovery is the wish of his many friends.

Mr. Amburgy and family, of near Means, have moved to their new home, the Norris farm, here.

Victor Baxter has been confined to his home for two weeks with flu.

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Norris were due to arrive at Pasadena, Cal., their new home, early last week. Their numerous friends reluctantly gave them over to the land of fruits and flowers. May their new surroundings meet their every expectation, and to their new neighbors and friends we commend them as worthy members to any community. Kentucky's doors stand ajar.

The many rains have delayed farm work very much. Plowing is now getting under headway in earnest.

The Sunday afternoons are almost dead when the laddie hitches up "Dobbin" and takes the lassie hugging, and, greatly to "Dobbin's" delight, he may on these occasions leave his speed in the stable. "Dobbin" also is a good listener, but a poor talker.

Gardening time is with us, and it might be well to say to the amateur not to set onions too close to the spuds, as they have "eyes to water" and be sure not to plant corn in reach of the horse radish.

Defending a principle is honorable, though it require a day, a week or years. When policy enter the field, the "principle" in principle departs.

A RESPONSE

In an editorial in The Advocate of March 9, headed "Political Casting," it was our object to put our Democratic friends on the lookout for a man suited in every way for the high office of Governor of Kentucky. In this effort we were successful. Mr. T. J. Bigstaff, an educated gentleman, a farmer by theory and experience, who has had the highest position cast on him (honors unsought) by Kentucky farmers' associations, has in mind a man who would make an ideal Governor, and that man he points out, Charles E. Marvin, of the county of Scott. Mr. Marvin, as we understand, is a man of the highest standard, well informed, is a clear reasoner, logical and courageous, with a sound acceptable reason for his position on all questions at issue. We are glad for Democrats to consider such a man as Hon. Charles E. Marvin for this responsible position.

Mr. Marvin comes from the farm and, like the man who presents him to Kentucky Democracy, is a farmer, skilled and practical, a man of clear head and practical theories. We do not know that Mr. Marvin would permit his name to be used in this connection, but certainly such a man is worthy of our most serious consideration. This is a time when the position should seek the man. For this position there will, most likely, be many aspirants and we want Kentucky to have the best, one without a black spot on him, and who has a mind of his own, a leader not of just a political class, but of the entire people.

ENCOURAGING

The new hotel project is the talk now. Everybody is enthused that the long desired need is to be supplied. Everybody wants a share in this enterprise and everybody will have an opportunity to take the amount of stock they want. When completed and we note the improvement, we will know it is ours. The housewife with a few dozen eggs will have an additional market. The women, men and children with their berries will know the new hotel with its many to feed counts for somethings. The farmer with his over production of lard, of sausage, of spare ribs and backbones will know where to take them, and the gardener will realize quick sales at paying prices for their products.

The campaign drive is now nearing and everybody should be ready to name the number of shares as soon as the opportunity is given to subscribe.

No wonder mothers love boys. A boy will eat almost anything and beg for more, while a girl is always finding fault with the grub.

DIABETES AND BRIGHT'S DISEASE TAKE BIG TOLL

(Medical Review of Reviews)

In 1917 there were 16.9 deaths from diabetes per 100,000 population, while 107.4 out of 100,00 died of Bright's disease.

It is estimated that there are, at the present time, at least a million cases of diabetes in this country. It is probable that the number of nephritics is even greater. So that now, perhaps, the most dangerous menace to life and health in America lies in the prevalence of these insidious disorders, the presence of which is rarely suspected until the bastions of the body defenses have been undermined.

In diabetes, every effort is made to keep the urine free from sugar—even though the last bearable degree of starvation be enforced for this purpose. On the face of it, it would seem obvious that to deprive a diabetic of all sugar-forming food is no more likely to cure him of a disease—one symptom of which is the appearance of sugar in the urine—than would depriving him of meat and all albuminous foods cure him of Bright's disease—one symptom of which is the appearance of albumin in the urine.

These underlying causes, according to W. H. Porter, emeritus professor of pathology and clinical medicine in the Post Graduate Medical School and Hospital, New York, are under-oxidation and imperfect elimination of the end-products of proteid digestion.

It is, no doubt, in strict conformity with these advanced theories that the astonishing results secured by Dr. Ida M. Sanborn, a Chicago physician, are brought about.

In fact, it is of intense interest to note that, independently of each other, Dr. Porter and Dr. Sanborn had, for twenty years past, been evolving what must now be recognized as the ultra-modern conception of the etiology and treatment of under-oxidation disorders.

A convincing proof of the value of the Sanborn treatment is exemplified in the person of C. S. Harmon, a retired lawyer, of Chicago. The results in his case led to the organization in that city of the Analytical Laboratories, Inc.—an association of physicians and laboratory technicians of whom Dr. Sanborn is chief of staff, and who are conducting this treatment on an institutional scale.

Mr. Harmon, who had consulted eminent specialists, both in this country and abroad, was pronounced a hopeless incurable diabetic. He had undergone two serious surgical operations, one for a gangrenous involvement of the glands of the neck, operated by Dr. A. W. Elting, of Albany, N. Y., and again for a similar condition in the right leg, operated by Dr. A. R. Johnstone, chief of the surgical staff of the Lakeside hospital, Chicago, and Dr. Charles H. Loder.

In the interim between these two operations Mr. Harmon took the Allen treatment.

The results were negative. In fact, it seemed to create a further depression, and decidedly to lessen vital resistance.

On April 25, 1917, Mr. Harmon began the Sanborn treatment. At that time he showed a sugar percentage of 11.4 with a specific gravity of 10.40 heavy acetone, and considerable diacetic acid.

Only slight restrictions were placed on the diet—although moderation was strictly enjoined. For Dr. Sanborn contends that a diet calculated to make a well man sick—which a characteristic diabetic diet can consistently be depended upon to do—cannot logically be expected to make a weak man well. And, that the only method by which health and strength can be built back into a body is by feeding that body.

Within six months a very marvelous degree of improvement was manifested. In less than a year every sign of diabetes had cleared up.

Mr. Harmon has been sugar free for more than four years now; denies himself nothing in the way of food; and, in every respect, is living and enjoying life quite as he did twenty-five years ago.

W. H. Dyrenforth, general plant counsel of the Standard Oil Company, first presented himself for treatment in September, 1912. He had a high specific gravity of the urine, 10.8 per cent of sugar, diacetic and acetone heavy, and slightly more than 1 per cent of albumin—also casts.

Yet Mr. Dyrenforth was discharged in January, 1913, sugar and albumin free and has since been doing the work of about three men, without recurrence of any of the symptoms of either diabetes or Bright's disease.

Mrs. E. A. Graham, widow of the founder of the Graham & Morton line of lake steamships; Rev. Robert M. Hennessey, C. M., of Mt. St. Scholastica's Academy, Canon City, Col.; Mrs. Dolly Thompson Frady, of 5492 South Shore Drive, Chicago; J. B. White, general agent for the Glens Falls Insurance Company; P. M. Heimbach, department head for Marshall Field & Co.; P. D. Peters, former president of the chamber of commerce of Benton Harbor, Mich., and hundreds of other patients, more or less well known, have in the last twenty years, been pronounced cured by many of the most eminent medical men of the country by this very remarkable treatment.

This is a record of achievement that must carry conviction to even the most skeptical.

AROUND THE CITY

Passing up Holt avenue we paused at the green house of A. J. Humphries. He has 3,000 square feet of glass and has one of the most modern plants in Kentucky. His flowers, potted and cut, are just beautiful. If we knew words that would express their attractiveness more superlatively, we would do it. Mr. Humphries produces flowers that meet the demand of our people, nothing more.

We didn't get far around, but we did notice an improvement of Buford Boone's Elm street residence; the Episcopal parsonage; the Standard Oil Company; Tom Turley's residence on Mitchell avenue; Richardson & Craig's cottage on the same avenue; a garage on Strother street; Jesse Hainline's beautiful two-story dwelling on the corner of Sycamore and Sterling streets; R. ANNOUNCES FOR CONGRESS

Arch L. Hamilton, representative from Fayette county, last week announced his candidacy for congress from the Seventh district on the Democratic ticket, to succeed Congressman J. Campbell Cantrill, of Georgetown. It was reported that Congressman Cantrill would retire to run for the nomination for governor on the Democratic ticket.

The following resolution, introduced in the house of representatives by Rufus Lisle, of Jessamine county, was adopted unanimously: "Whereas, it is rumored that J. Campbell Cantrill, the present representative in congress, will be a candidate for governor, and if this rumor is true, the members of the house of representatives endorse the Hon. Arch L. Hamilton to be a candidate to succeed him as congressman. It is implied in this resolution that if Congressman Cantrill declines to be a candidate for governor, Mr. Hamilton declines to be an aspirant for this position. If Mr. Cantrill announces for congress this resolution is null and void."

OUT OF WORK GIVES TO RELIEF

Kentucky Man Sends In Subscription
to American Jewish Relief Fund
Although He Is Not Himself
A Jew

Head of A Family of Seven And Without Work, Yet He Gives To The Relief of Starving Jewish
People in Europe

Although not a Jew himself, and although he is out of work and the sole support of a family of seven, yet S. W.
Glascock, of Greenville, Ky., was so stirred by the appeal of the American Jewish Relief Committee for the relief of starving and destitute orphans and men and women in Central and Eastern Europe that he has sent in a contribution of $7 to the headquarters of the Relief Committee, National Theater Building, Louisville.

In a letter to Col. Fred Levy, of Louisville, State Chairman of the campaign to raise $150,000 in Kentucky, Mr. Glascock says:

"Enclosed find check for $5 to help the starving people in Europe. Please take and use this to help the needy.
I am no Jew, but I have sympathy for that starving nation and do hope you will be successful in raising the amount you intend. Also $2 for the destitute children. This is the amount I promised my Saviour to give these needy people over one year ago. So my promise is fulfilled today, yet I am a poor man with 7 in my family without work and have been for some time, but yet I feel disposed to help these people as the Great Master has been kind to me in my distress. Thanking you for your kindness in this great work, and I hope you won't have much trouble in raising your amount."

The appeal of the American Jewish Relief Committee is particularly directed to Jewish people but subscriptions in any amount will be gladly received from people of all faiths.

HERBERT HOOVER ENDORSES CAMPAIGN

Secretary of Commerce And Relief
Expert Commends Work For Relief of Stricken Jewish People in Europe

Declares That The Jewish People In America Have Always Responded Liberally To All Efforts To Alleviate Distress

Probably no man in this country is better acquainted with conditions in Europe than Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce. Mr. Hoover has written David A. Brown, Chairman of the American Jewish Relief Committee, New York, fully endorsing the work of that organization which is seeking to raise $14,000,000 for the relief of starving and destitute Jewish people in Central and Eastern Europe.

Kentucky's share in the national campaign is expected to add at least $150,000 to the fund. Fifty thousand dollars is to be raised in the state and $100,000 in Louisville. While the campaign is under the direction of the Jewish people and subscriptions will be solicited largely from them, all who are in sympathy with the movement may contribute and their money will be gratefully received.

The letter from Secretary Hoover
follows:

"Dear Mr. Brown:

"Each year when the American Jewish Relief Committee has made its appeal, I have had the honor of commending its work to the American people and likewise each year I have observed the continued necessity and the continued high efficiency of its service.

"It has always maintained a broadmindedness in the matter of race and religion and has given its support, both financial and moral, to every effort in the alleviation of human distress.

"I trust the Committee will have the same support again that it has had hitherto.

"Yours faithfully,
"HERBERT HOOVER."

SUPPOSE YOU WERE STARVING

Meanless Days And Wheatless Days
And Lightless Nights of War
Period Are Recalled

But America Never Had One Foodless
Day After Another As Is Now
The Experience of Jewish
People in Europe

This question if asked of the average American would at once be placed in the "idle dream" class. It is difficult for us here in Kentucky to believe that anywhere in this country men, women and children are starving and that belief is well borne out by the facts. We hear of some soup kitchens, some bread lines and some coffee houses in the big cities far away,
but we find no starvation.

It even requires some tax on our brain works to recall the "wheatless days
and the lightless nights of a few brief months ago.
But in all that time of stress and trouble we never had a foodless day and if we did we never had two of them in succession.

But that is exactly what is going on in Central and Eastern Europe today.
Literally thousands of innocent children are dying for lack of nourishment. They are wandering about eating roots, grass, anything to try to satisfy the growing pangs of hunger.

The same thing is true of men and women. Homeless, clothed in rags, living on anything that offers even the meanest nourishment, they are stumbling on praying for the relief that must come if they are to live.

This is the reason for the campaign for funds by the American Jewish Relief Committee in Kentucky the latter part of March.

BLUE GRASS FIRES THE OPENING GUN

Big Meeting At Lexington Starts The Campaign For The American Jewish Relief Committee

Delegates From Many Cities Gather
To Form Organization For Raising Money For Stricken People of Europe

One of the most enthusiastic meetings ever held in the Blue Grass was called to order in the Lafayette Hotel
in Lexington Sunday afternoon, March 5, by Gus L. Heyman, who introduced
Col. Fred Levy, of Louisville, State Chairman of the drive in Kentucky to raise $150,000 for the relief of destitute
Jewish people in Central and Eastern Europe.

Delegates were present from Lexington, Winchester, Paris, Carlisle, Cynthiana, Danville and other cities in the Blue Grass.

Col. Levy in his address told of the great needs of the starving and destitute children, of the men and women, in the war-torn sections of Central and Eastern Europe who, through no fault of their own, were compelled to undergo untold sufferings and whose only relief lies in the willingness of the people of the United States to help them.

Col. Levy referred to the great work of "Jimmie" Becker, son of a rich Chicago banker, who refused a life of ease and as a member of Herbert Hoover's relief forces abroad brought back to this country such a soul-stirring appeal that Julius Rosenwald, the well known financier, called a conference which started the great drive.
David A. Brown, a successful business man of Detroit who attended the conference was so impressed that he turned back his tickets already purchased for a year's pleasure trip abroad and plunged into the task of raising $14-000,000 for relief work.

"We are going to give as we have never given before," said Col. Levy,
"and until every orphan, every victim
has been provided with food and clothing, homes, hospitals, schools and until each man is granted the right to work and support his family. These sufferers are not beggars; many among them were financially better off than you and I are before they were caught in the maelstrom of war. They are not asking for charity. They are asking for relief and we are going to see that they get it. We invite members of other faiths to join with us in this great work."

Other speakers were Rabbi Rarch
of Louisville, Jonas Weil, of Lexington, Edward Sachs, of Louisville and many others. A mass meeting will be held in Lexington Sunday, March 19,
when the campaign in the Blue Grass
will be started.

PRESIDENT HARDING PRAISES THE WORK

Nation's Chief Executive Gives His Unqualified Approval To Ameri-

Calls Upon The People To Give Of Their Means For The Relief of Starving People in Europe

Among the hundreds of letters of endorsement received by Mr. David A.
Brown, Chairman of the National Appeal, American Jewish Relief Committee, New York, is a very characteristic one from President Warren G.
Harding. The Committee is endeavoring to raise $14,000,000 for the relief of stricken Jewish people in Central and Eastern Europe. Of this amount $150,000 has been allotted to Kentucky, $50,000 from the state and $100-000 from Louisville. While the Jewish people of the state will be called upon directly to raise this amount, subscriptions from all will be very gratefully received.

The letter from President Harding
follows:

"My Dear Mr. Brown:

"It is a pleasure to communicate to you and your associates the assurance of my unqualified approval of the great effort you are making in behalf of the suffering and unfortunate Jewish people of Europe. The presentations of their case which have come to my attention, have impressed me profoundly, and it is good to know that such an organization as your own is continuing the splendid work that in the past has been so very fruitful of humane and praiseworthy results.

"I trust that the effort in which you are now engaged will have the fullest measure of success.

"Very sincerely,
"WARREN G. HARDING."

$1,000 PAID FOR SOW

The highest price paid for a Duroc Jersey sow in the United States within a year was realized by McKee Brothers, in Woodford county, on Tuesday, when they sold one animal for $1,000 to J. H. Persons, of Terre Haute, Ind.

Thirty-five head of Duroc Jersey bred sows were sold at the sale for a total of $6,575, an average of $188 per head. While a number of the hogs were sent out of the state, the majority were sold to Kentuckians.

Doctors Could Do Much More Good

If doctors advertised, would not
the public be enormously benefited?
Not flamboyant, egotistical advertising, but dignified matter containing statements of truth that few hesitate doctors know.

Dr. Royal S. Copeland, health commissioner of New York City, thinks they should. In an address before a club, Dr. Copeland called attention to the fact that as soon as the public learned that Dr. Lorenz, who recently arrived from Vienna, could cure certain forms of paralysis, 35,000 people flocked to him for treatment. There were other surgeons in New York just as capable as the Viennese physician, but they never made known to the public that they could cure paralysis,
and so the people remained in ignorance, the health commissioner declared.

"There is something wrong with the system that makes it impossible for the sick or the crippled person
not to know that he can be healed.
And the fault is with the medical profession, which has been unwilling to advertise what it can do.

"Dr. Lorenz did not bring with him any greater ability than at least twenty surgeons in this city possess.
It was because our doctors or our methods did not bring home to the people what can be done that we went to the distinguished foreigner to hear what he would tell us.

"Here we come to the problem of advertising," he said. "The medical profession, through the ages, has chosen to make itself a secret thing.
The doctor has been looked upon as a sort of miracle man. He has hidden his wisdom behind the veil of silence. An air of mystery has surrounded the profession and we have developed a code of ethics. This, I believe, is the most antiquated, moss covered and germ laden institution in the world!"

He said that if the public were given more information about cancer, the disease would never reach the cancerous stage. A woman who has a tumor, he said, usually keeps the fact hidden until it develops into a cancer, when it is too late. Any cancer, said Commissioner Copeland, is curable in the beginning. The public must be taught that, he said.

WAY BACK YONDER WHEN LIQUOR WAS 5c. A QUART

From an old, old almanac of 100 years ago the following price list is taken:

Home-made whisky, 20 cents per gallon.

Apple brandy, same.

Roads were not marked. Planks were laid down broadwise and run over until they sank in the mud. The road was then taken up, thrown away and a new plank laid down.

The farmers did not go to the grocery store every day for provisions.
There were no grocery stores to go to, and every farmer crad his own meats and raised his own wheat and corn.

The meats were bacon, side meats,
streak-o-lean and streak-o-fat,
smoked hams and sausage, venison and occasionally roast of beef for Sunday when the preacher came around or there was a wedding. The chickens were worth 50 cents a dozen when they were sold at all. Eggs retailed for 2 to 4 cents a dozen.

Corn was $1 per barrel, and oats were 15 cents per bushel.

Brown sugar retailed at 5 cents per pound, and maple sugar at 4 cents. Tree molasses, or maple syrup, sold at 50 cents per gallon.

Everybody picked their own geese for own feather beds. Squirrels were so plentiful that they sold for 5 cents a dozen when they sold at all.

The men wore brown jeans for everyday wear, and blue jeans with brass buttons for Sunday-go-to-meeting. Green walnut bark dyed all the jeans, and everybody wore boots. When a young man was particularly anxious to look sweet in his girl's eyes he wore boots with red tops and took his girl up behind him on his horse when they went to church.—Glasgow Times.

WHO PAYS FOR ADVERTISING?

This question is as old as Advertising itself. It has been answered many times, but there are still many doubting Thomases who have never carefully studied the relation of Advertising to Merchandising. They regard Advertising as an additional tax on business—something to be added to overhead expense—the same as putting in new counters or electric light fixtures. They take the position that the cost of Advertising must reduce their profits or it must be added to the selling price of the goods. When the merchant advertises he must take his choice of two alternatives—take less profits, or pass along the increased cost to the consumer. This is an old fallacy. Most advertisers know better now.

Of course the consumer pays for the advertising—someone pays for it. As the manufacturer is not buying his own output he is not paying for his advertising. The person who buys an advertised product pays for the raw material, for the cost of manufacturing, and the cost of distribution (which includes advertising.)

But the real question is, would the consumer pay less if the commodity were not advertised? As a matter of fact he would not buy it at all if it were not advertised—he would never have heard of it. Can you imagine a woman going into a store and asking for an article she never heard of? But granted, for the sake of an argument, that a person might go into a store and ask for something she had never heard of, does it cost her more for having been advertised? The answer is NO. It may, and probably does, cost her less than if it had been advertised.

There is nothing intricate or complex about this proposition. It is very simple if one will care to consider the elemental principles of manufacturing and merchandising. Now, how can advertising lower the cost of an article to the consumer? The answer is, by increasing the volume of sales and quick turnover. Economics in manufacturing are brought about by quantity production, and quantity production is brought about by advertising. These economics that are brought about by quantity production enable the manufacturer to sell an article much cheaper than he could sell it with small production and small volume of sales.

Two manufacturers are engaged in making a shaving cream. Neither of them advertises and the sales of each are one hundred thousand tubes per year. One manufacturer determines to advertise and appropriates one cent on each tube sold. Presently he finds his market expanded to meet a demand of two hundred thousand tubes a year. He discovers that economies in manufacture now make it possible to lower the cost per tube. The next year he increases his appropriation two cents per tube and sells three hundred thousand tubes, and still further lowers his factory cost, thereby increasing his profit. The third year's increase of his advertising appropriation increases his distribution to five hundred thousand tubes, still further reducing the cost of production. He finally decides that his profit is too large. He cuts the price below what it was during the first year and makes twice the profit.

This is no fanciful theory, but is a mathematical proposition from which there is no escape. The manufacturer reduces the selling price to the consumer and actually makes a larger profit through quantity production that comes as a result of advertising.

The man who increases the annual volume of his sales through advertising is the man who can buy in largest quantities at the best advantage, and hence it is in his power to undersell all competitors and at the same time show a good clean profit at the end of the year.

The road to success is not to be run upon by seven-leaved boots. Step by step, little by little, bit by bit—that is the way to wisdom, that is the way to glory.

Girls need to stay at home in the old days because they had "nothing to wear." But look at 'em now.

ONE GOOD TAX RETURN DESERVES ANOTHER

The time approaches when it becomes our inalienable duty to lay our very souls bare to the Income Tax Collector. We recall that certain blanks asking uncertain questions will be thrust into our reluctant hands.

We do not know the man whose duty it is to draw up these blanks, but we are reasonably sure that he has ably succeeded in making a hard job harder; and in much the same spirit we are offering our friends the following code of answers, believing that the man who drew the questions would understand nothing less ambiguous.

Question—Did you file a return for 1929?

Answer—Add answers 6 and 8 and subtract Item 5, as in Instruction 7!

Question—If so, what address did you give on that return?

Answer—Answered only on Saturdays, Sunday and Holidays!

Question—If not, state why a return was not filed?

Answer—Because!

Question—Did you pay to any individual, rent, salaries, wages, etc., or other determinable income of $1,000 or over?

Answer—Let's see, now; did I?

Question—Were you at any time during this period married and living with your wife?

Answer—Who the deuce do you think I was living with?

Question—If not, were you the head of a family, as defined in Question D?

Answer—I answered that last year! Look it up yourself, you big stiff!

Question—How many dependent persons (mentally or physically defective) received their chief support from you during the year?

Answer—The crowd I play poker with, all my wife's relatives, and seven or eight hat-check boys!

Question—What is the relationship to you of the dependent persons for whose support you claim exemption?

Answer—My wife's third cousin is my uncle's aunt, and she's my niece by marriage. If you don't believe me, see Items 6 and 7!

Question—Did your wife or any of your dependents make a separate return?

Answer—Yes, one of my neighbors returned my lawn mower, and my son returned from college by request.

Question—If not, have you included the taxable income of your wife and the earnings of your dependents?

Answer—Through advice of counsel I refuse to answer!

Question—Did you file an income tax return with a U. S. Collector of Internal Revenue?

Answer—The rose is red, the violet's blue, see Item 6 and also 2!

Question—If so, what amount of total net income did you report?

Answer—It was either three or four cents, I'm not sure!

There, you get the idea. Now go ahead and give him a dose of his own medicine! You may be put in jail for it, but then someone ought to go to jail for such a thing; and if you'll be the martyr to the cause we'll send you baskets of fruit and everything!—Norman Anthony, in Judge.

See PARIS on PARADE

IF YOU COULD GO TO PARIS, that magic city of fashion, to visit its shops and see the new creations in the hands of the master designers themselves, and as worn by the daring French mannequins, what a wonderful time you would have! And how gladly you would go!

You can experience the thrill of a trip to Paris by coming to Louisville during March 31st to April 8th, for Paris will be transplanted for those days to Louisville, in the most gorgeous Style Show and Exposition ever staged in America.

Louisville's Second Annual STYLE SHOW and EXPOSITION

Here you will find Paris, with its Eiffel Tower, its Arch De Triumph, its spraying fountains, its beautiful boulevards, its out of door tables, that are so much a part of Parisian life, and even its charming little flower girls and its gendarmes.

And—best of all—here, too, you will find, in shops and on stage, the very newest of Spring apparel. Fifty professional models, twice daily, will promenade the boulevards of this transplanted Paris, and display the exclusive creations brought here by the exhibiting merchants. In addition, at matinee and evening performances, there will be many special attractions that will make each highly entertaining.

Isn't This Worth Striving For?

Suppose, Mr. Progressive Citizen, some industrial firm were to say to you: "We want to bring to Mt. Sterling an industry which will place in circulation some hundreds of thousands of dollars—an industry which will increase your property values—an industry which will afford you a civic center; a place for your social, fraternal and political enterprises and projects; an industry which will employ a number of people; an industry which will enable you to obtain for Mt. Sterling state and sectional conventions with their hundreds of delegates; an industry that will enable Mt. Sterling to care for hundreds of tourists, buyers and travelers who come to or through Mt. Sterling and cause them to spend time and money here in your city." For such an industry any city would make great concessions.

What Would Be Your Answer?

Wouldn't you, too, reach out, gladly as a community-inspired citizen for such an enterprise, for such an industry?

Yet that is exactly what this new hotel means to Mt. Sterling, and no concession is asked nor expected, except the hearty support of every loyal citizen.

The stock in this new hotel must be held by our own people—for this is a community enterprise. We cannot expect outside capital to be interested in our civic movements if we ourselves are not sufficiently interested to invest some of our own money.

If we are to grow and progress—if we want to profit by the experience of others we must supply this greatest of all Mt. Sterling's needs.
